

Decision Making – What would you do?

“What would you do?” problems focus on principles of faithful decision making. They can be introduced into almost any Sunday school lesson with any age group. Give your students practice with well-chosen examples. And be sure to give the children time to think about a problem before telling you what they would do. Teach them to think before they act.

“What would you do?” problems also make good Bible learning center activities. Let the children work on one or two, individually or in small groups, after the main lesson has been taught. Monitor their progress.

Tragedy! What would you do?

One of the young people that everybody knows is killed in a terrible accident. The kids all come together to try and deal with it.

- 1 – You are the CYC leader. How will you handle this?
- 2 – What will you say to the kids? What will you not say to them?
- 3 – Is what you say as important as what the kids say at this time? Explain.
